Atlanta Constitution: Trousers came into use for general wear with the French revolution. The gentlemen, the sup-porter of royalty and sound constitutions. principles, wore breeches. The term 'sans culottes' sufficiently explained what were not worn by the masses who forced constitutional reform into revolution. By an apparent contradiction of purpose and principle the "sans culottes" who denounced everyone who wore breeches finally went beyond their op-ponents and wore twice as much cloth around their legs; in a word, adopted the modern trowsers and made them the badge of a party as well known as a class. Napoleon, who was too thin at one period of his life and too stout at another to look of his life and too stout at another to look his best in small clothes, nevertheless wore them on state occasions after he had set up a throne and gone into the emperor business. His army was the first that wore trousers, and trousers made progress in general adoption step by step with the march of the French army. The French trousers and ness gaiter were seen in Egypt, in Spain, is Italy, in Germany, in Poland and Russia, on the banks of the Tagus and those of the Vistula. People thought that the manner in which a great conquering nation clad its legs was the model, and tion clad its legs was the model, and when the trousers-wearers marched over at Jean and Auerstadt, a decision was given from which the world did not care to appeal. The world is usually easily convinced of the wisdom of the victor. England stood out the longest against trousers, but finally she yielded, and her army marched to Waterioo wearing the universal leg fun-nels. Our grandfathers generally fell in with the ways of the world, though federalists here and there would not yield. There is a story of a clergyman who, There is a story of a clergyman who, greeted with the rough inquiry, "How are you, priest?" responded: "How are you, democrat? How do you know I'm a priest?" "By your dress. How do you know I'm a democrat?" "By your address." Doubtless the clergyman wore knee breeches, while the admirer of Jefferson and "dangerous French principles," clothed his legs with trousers.

The Best Burglar Alarm.

New York Sun: The easy and undisturbing way in which some burglars walked into a gentleman's house in Rockaway Monday night, although six dogs were kenneled outside and one was inside, makes the study of nocturnal pro-tection very important.

The general idea of the amount of pro-tection furnished by so-called watch-dogs is very erroneous. The fact is that ordinary dogs present no serious obstacle to an experienced burgiar at all. But, although, as a rule, dogs are easily managed when certain things are about a house, a burglar will try almost any other before meddling with that one. At given by an expert they are as follows is the order of efficacy. the order of efficacy:

A baby.
A small female dog within the house.
A female dog without the house.
A light.
Thus it will be seen that a baby, and the more immature and helpless the better, is a better protectior to a country bouse than its stalwart father, for where there is a baby there is sure to be a sleep-less eye watching it. No mere argument in favor of matrimony could be half se powerful as this fact.
